

The Correlation Among Mother's Knowledge And Patterns Of Nutritional Care Nutritional Toddler To The Childrend Nutrient Status Before And After Counseling About Nutrition Care Pattern
In The District Panti, Jember

Erva Ambar M.T.¹⁾ Ir. Heri Warsito, MP.²⁾ Puspito Arum, S.Gz., M.Gizi²⁾

ABSTRACT

Nurture is the factors that have effect toward grow of under 5 year old children. That aged 1-5 year old children (balita) is period in which the child is still need food and nutrition supplies in sufficient quantities. The goal of research is to analyze the relationship between mother's knowledge and the pattern of nutritional to the nutritional care to nutritional status of children before and after counseling in Panti, Jember. Research's instrument that used was kuestioner. Respondents are 23 mothers and their childrends 24-59 months old. Results of analysis using Spearman's Ranks showed no relationship between mother's knowledge with nutritional status of children ($p = 0.806$). There is a relationship feeding practices with nutritional status of children ($p = 0.013$). No relationship hygiene and environmental sanitation practices with nutritional status of children ($p = 0.396$). Their no relationship between childs care practice relationship in sickness with nutritional status of children ($p = 0.819$). Conclusion of this research is the variables related to the nutritional status of children is the practice of feeding.

Keywords: Mother's Knowledge, Patern Nutrient, Childrends Nutrient Status and Counseling

- 1) University Student of Jember State Polytechnic, Health Department, D-IV Clinical Nutrition Major.
- 2) Advisors in Jember State Polytechnic, Health Depatment, D-IV Clinical Nutrition Major.