

Hubungan Status Fungsi Oral, Tingkat Depresi, dan Tingkat Konsumsi Energi dengan Status Gizi Lansia di UPT Pelayanan Sosial Lanjut Usia Jember. (The Relationship The Status Function of Oral, The Level of Depression, and The Level of Energy Consumption with Nutritional Status of Elderly at Upt Social Services Elderly Jember).

Mohammad Zainul Ma'arif

Program Studi Gizi Klinik

Jurusan Kesehatan

A population of the elderly in Indonesia increased from year to year. In the year 2010 the number of elderly in Indonesia reach 23.9 million peoples and it is estimated that in 2020 by increased to 28.8 million peoples. Physiological changes, physical, and psychological that occurs in elderly can affect the status of health and nutrition status that led to the seniors who become susceptible group suffer problems of nutrition. The purpose of the research is to know the relation of the relationship the status function of oral, the level of depression, and the level of energy consumption with nutritional status of elderly. This type of research using survey method with cross sectional analytic. The population of this research are elderly aged above 60 years with the total sample 18 peoples. Analysis of data using Test Spearman's. Conclusion based on the analysis spearman's got that was no correlation between the status function of oral and the level of depression with nutritional status ($p>0,05$). There was a correlation between the level of energy consumption with nutritional status of elderly ($p<0,05$).

Keywords: Elderly, Energy Consumption Level, Level of Depression, Nutritional Status, Status Function of Oral